

Salesforce development team for hire at Kloudblaze

Finding Salesforce development resources is a huge challenge in today's market, but Kloudblaze is here to help. Our development team for hire services focuses on finding and training your developers to your long-term need and specifications. We will source, vet, and train your future developers to ensure they fit into your organization and needs. We do not just find your developers, but also provide you with project managers for each team to improve work efficiency and speed up delivery. On top of that, we guarantee 20% below the market cost for all developers we provide.

Benefits of hired development teams

- No cost commitment, your company can optimize the budget for projects only
- Low running cost as we search cheaper labor fee markets to assemble your development teams
- Teams are dedicated to your needs and trained to be efficient on the project
- Our project managers will ensure efficiency and quality
- We at Kloudblaze take full responsibility for the code and quality of our developers' work
- Fees are based on workdays and a strict timesheet system helps you keep control of the cost and work done

How does the hiring process work?

- We analyze your requirements via phone or video call
- We find the best-fit developers in our database of developers
- We assemble a team of developers, architects, and project managers based on your needs
- We set up a training plan created by a seasoned Salesforce Architect to ensure your developers are trained for the task and have all they need to start developing
- We will keep a close eye on their performance, provide documentation and time logs
- We continuously take feedback from you and adjust our process along the way

Contact Us >